Manner and Means

The objects of said conspiracy were to be accomplished and were accomplished as follows:

3. During the period of the conspiracy, members of the conspiracy frequently used cellular telephones to maintain contact with each other and with their customers to arrange for the acquisition and distribution of powder cocaine and cocaine base and/or to arrange for the collection of drug proceeds and to otherwise facilitate the conspiracy. Members of the conspiracy often placed the accounts associated with the cellular telephones in the names of other individuals, and/or periodically changed or dropped the telephone number or service, to protect themselves from being identified and their drug dealing activities from being disclosed to law enforcement.

4. Members of the conspiracy often used discrete or coded language, such as “fish” (half of any quantity of cocaine base), “dollar or any reference to 100” (3.5 grams of cocaine base) “onion or zip” (ounce of cocaine base), “The Deuce or the South” (house at 1741 S.W. 12th Street), “the Lab or the West” (house at 8101 S.W. Boatsman Avenue), and “a rack” (one thousand dollars) to attempt to conceal the illegal nature of their conversation.

ISAIAH McCORKLE, a/k/a Ish, BRITTANY COPELAND, and LOWELL JONES, distributed cocaine base to others who were operating as re-distributors or users.
